BUSINESS MEN URGED TO ATTEMPT BIGGER THINGS

Banquet on Chicken and Hear Rousing Address.

STRESS NEED OF HOUSES

The annual banquet of the Associated Business Men of Bellefonte, held in the Brockerhoff House on last Thursday evening, was every whit the success anticipated. Charles L. Schmidt, of Harrisburg, was the principal speaker. Mr. Landsy served a delicious chicken banquet and the Bellefonte Academy orchestra kept the air enlivened with up-to-date tunes that were highly appreciated. Just 125 persons attended.

Robt. F. Hunter was toastmaster and introduced Mr. Smith. The latter is an entertaining speaker and International Kiwanis field representative. He first spoke of his home city, Harrisburg, where he was born and has business interests. His topic was "Co-operation in Civic Affairs."

"I want to get as close to you as I can: I want you to think of me as one of your number," Mr. Schmidt remarked in beginning his address. He told of co-operation, banding together, being as old as the hills. "Way back in the Bible we find it. First was the family and then the clans, the tribes, or whatever you care to call them. Humanity banded together, co-operating to preserve themselves from the dangers of those days," he said.

"Today, we have civic luncheon clubs, the greatest advance made in co-operation to my way of thinking. You have the Rotary club, the Kiwanis, the Lyons club, and then the local clubs, types or their districts. In the south, to the north, in the west along the coast states, you have the Exchange clubs. They all have one purpose, closer co-operation in civic affairs.

"Some say the Rotary club is the oldest. It is not. The Optimus club was first. The Rotary is one of the strongest. They have 1,200 to 1,300 clubs and a membership of 85,000 to 90,000. The Kiwanis have 930 clubs, as of Jan. 1, with a combined membership of 85,000. The Lions clubs are particularly strong in the western part of this state. There were 630 on Jan. 1 with a membership of about 40,000. These three big clubs, with a membership of over 200,000 men, leading business men of their communities, are a mighty force in accomplishing that which they set out to do.

"An Associated Business Men's organization can do much, but a Kiwanis club, a civic luncheon club, can do much more. There is a broader field of activity. Each of the civic luncheon clubs has a particular work. The Rotary plays big brother, the Kiwanis look after the unprivileged child. This is a special work, but worthy.

"These clubs lessen selfish motives and stimulate love. The Kiwanis spirit is brought out by the Kiwanis luncheons. You get to know one another better. Most of the world's troubles are today caused by selfishness. There is that something in each man's heart which he hides until some spirit brings it forth. You reveal it to your wife if you are married; otherwise, to your sweetheart, when in a darkened room. But when you get with other men it embarrasses you. Its love. Civic luncheon clubs get the men together for an hour and maybe fifteen minutes more, but not any longer. Men eat together and chat together. The spark of love becomes evident. Show it, kindle it, and get a body of men together with love back of them and they can do anything. That's what your Kiwanis club is for.

Col. J. L. Spangler was next to respond. His talk was typical and practical. Four outstanding thoughts were favored: He said that Boy Scouts should be given every advantage possible and boosted, complimenting Rev. M. DePui Maynard on his work in leadership of our boys. One of the biggest mistakes the town has ever made was to leave the steam heating plant go broke, Mr. Spangler said, remarking: "I paid $432 for coal since last July. When the steam heating plant was in operation I got heat for 8 months for $180." A recent canvass of industries revealed 1,500 men, boys and girls on payrolls of industrial plants, earning approximately $100,000 per month, not taking into consideration those employed in stores and smaller establishments. This indicates the remarkable growth of the town under the few years of Associated Business Men leadership. Lastly, he said, the crying need of the town is more houses. People are clamoring for them. The Sutton-Abramsen Engineering Co. wants to increase their force and double their men employed, but can't because there are no houses. Is true in other industries. People are living in attics and some don't have a home. The logical way would be to double the amount being paid into the Centre Building & Loan Association, making it $20,000 per month instead of $10,000. This would provide funds to loan to thrifty men to build their own homes. If taxes are too high in Bellefonte, build the houses in Spring Twp., where taxes are less than half.

Col. W. Fred Reynolds was next called upon. He said: "As I look over your faces I notice only four here who started in business at the same time I did 40 years ago. At that time we had no difficulty in getting together whenever there was need for it. I believe there is the same spirit of co-operation now as there was then."

Others called upon were: Rev. Wm. Downes, Rev. M. DePui Maynard, Dr. George Bible, Irving Warner, and Ray Meyer, of Hazleton, the latter a guest of Mr. Hunter.

Mr. Schmidt was called to the floor again by motion and spoke about the Kiwanis club aim and object, and other matters that were attentively listened to and which were apparently well received.

The toastmaster then made a few closing remarks, giving any who desired an opportunity to speak and adjourned the meeting.

FEARS FOR PENN STATE

May Have No Freshman Class Next Year Owing to Money Shortage

State College will be forced to do without a freshman class next year, unless the Legislature provides a larger appropriation than that allowed Penn State by Governor Pinchot in his financial budget. Dr. Thomas, president of Penn State, made the announcement in an address in Philadelphia Tuesday night.

"If the new budget goes through we will be forced to cut down the service of the college to the State 25%," Dr. Thomas said. "This means that the farm extension work, which has been a vital feature, will be discontinued in 15 of the 63 counties in the State. We will have to discontinue our freshman class and decrease our teaching force and instead of being able to meet the increased demand for education we will be forced to turn away hundreds of prospective students."

Trainman Painfully Injured.

Floyd Davis, who recentry accepted a position as conductor on the Bellefonte Central railroad, was very painfully injured on last Friday evening while engaged in shifting cars at State College. He undertook to let the engine shift the cars by use of the engine pole a method which is forbidden by law. It seems he had the pole placed at the car and was holding so that the engine could come against it, when the force was too much for the pole causing it to become shattered. A piece of it struck Davis over the chest with such force that he was knocked from his feet and was picked up in an unconscious condition. A State College physician attended him and he was taken to his home at the Glass Works. Late reports are favorable to his recovery.

Bus Stalled in Snow.

About fifteen passengers on the Myers' bus were stranded and obliged to spend Monday night at a farm-house, when the bus stalled in the snow about 15 miles from State College on the route toward Tyrone. The Myers' busses operate on a regular schedule between State College and Tyrone. The heavy snow encountered on Monday night was the worst of the season. The snow was accompanied by a wind that drifted it in some places as it fell and it was in one of the drifts that the bus driver found himself up against a real barrier. The bus was held fast until Tuesday morning. On account of the condition of the road, operation of the bus line was stopped on Tuesday. Some of the passengers got into Tyrone about 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning by riding on a butcher's delivery truck. The bus was running from Tyrone toward State College when stalled. Some of the passengers walked two miles through a heavy sleet and windstorm, it was said.

Car Damaged on Curve.

The Ford car of John Knarr, of Centre Hall, was damaged when it collided with one of Emerick's busses on the sharp curve on the state road near the Kelly ice plant, just south of Bellefonte, on Wednesday morning. No person was injured and the car was towed to a garage for repairs. The rear hub cap of the Knarr car struck a tire on the bus and caused a "blowout." Ruts were blamed for the mishap.

JOEL JOHNSON SUMMONED AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Lived Ninety-two Years and Enjoyed Remarkable Health.

LAST SLEEP PEACEFUL

Joel Johnson, one of Centre County's oldest residents, passed from this life on Saturday afternoon at 5:45 o'clock at the home of son Milton, of Bellefonte, after a brief illness. For ninety-two years he shared joys and sorrows in this world and through it all retained remarkable health, having practically full and unimpaired use of all his faculties until Monday of last week, when he was obliged to remain in bed and gradually became weaker until the final summons came.

When the weather was not disagreeable, he spent considerable time in the open, chopping wood and doing light chores about the home of a devoted son, with whom he had resided for a number of years. He was a lover of the outdoors and followed farming during the earlier years of his life, being located on several farms in Ferguson Twp. and for a number of years at the Shoemaker farm, just north of town and now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Haupt.

Born in Chester Hill, Union County, on Dec. 14, 1830, he was a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Johnson. Most of his life was spent in Centre County, however, and it was here that he was best known. His wife died twenty-two years ago. His three brothers and six sisters also preceded him to the grave. One son, Harry, met with a tragic death on Dec. 12, 1922, when a shifting freight engine struck the truck of his brother M. R, while he was using it to haul coal for Miss Grove, of Milesburg. Surviving are two sons: M. R. and J. Curtis, of Bellefonte; three sisters: Mrs. W. C. Coxey, Bellefonte; Mrs. H. B. Mallory, Altoona, and Mrs. William Hendricks, of Coon Rapids, Iowa.

The venerable Joel Johnson was a staunch member of the Methodist Episcopal church. His pastor, Rev. E. E. McKelvey, assisted by Rev. C. C Shuey, conducted the funeral services, which were held on Tuesday afternoon. Burial was made in Union cemetery.

RUTS CAUSE COLLISION

Allen McClellan and Walter Dunklebarger in Accident.

Allen McClellan, of Bellefonte, driving to State College, where he is a student in Penn State, and Walter Dunklebarger, of Pleasant Gap, a dealer in milk and cream, were in an accident at Pleasant Gap on last Friday morning which resulted in their cars being considerably damaged.

It seems McClellan turned to one side of the road, but not far enough, and and Dunklebarger, who was in the milk delivery truck, was unable to get out of the ruts, sothat a head-on collision resulted. McClellan's car was a Buick touring. Both autoes were put out of commission and were towed to Pleasant Gap garages for repairs.

Mosier—Aikey.

Thomas Mosier and Miss Florence Aikey, both of Bellefonte, were united in marriage on last Thursday evening at the Lutheran parsonage by the pastor, Rev. Wilson P. Ard. Both are well known young persons. The groom is state game protector in Centre County and was formerly located at the Bush House. They have started housekeeping on East Howard street. They have best wishes of a host of friends.

Hoy—Spicer.

Roy H. Hoy and Miss Clara G. Spicer, of Bellefonte, were united in marriage at the parsonage of the United Brethren church in Bellefonte on Saturday by the pastor, Rev. George E. Smith. The groom is a son of Harvey Hoy and is 21 years old. His bride is a daughter of Mrs. Clara M. Spicer and the youngest person to be granted a license in Centre County so far this year, being 15 years old.

Haines—Aikey.

Eversley Haines and Miss Agnes Aikey, popular young folks of Bellefonte, were united in marriage at Williamsport on Saturday. The groom is employed at the Blair jewelry store and is familiarly known as "Chief." The happy couple have the best wishes of their many friends.

Left Leg Fractured.

Harvey Cowher, of Port Matilda, was admitted to the Cottage State hospital in Philipsburg one day last week. He suffered a fracture of the left leg when lumber fell from an auto truck and struck the limb. He is 48 years old and this makes the fracture more serious.

SLAYING OF WOUNDED DEER RAISES QUESTION

IS LAW ALWAYS RIGHT

A doubt as to whether law is always right is the big question that looms like an aftermath to a hearing before Kline Woodring, justice of the peace of Bellefonte, held on Saturday morning when testimony was taken regarding the slaying of a wounded deer by two Snow Shoe hunters, Joseph Cole and John McCartney, on Dec. 22, 1922. A technical point has been discovered that may make the deer very costly to the two men although they apparently did what any other humane hunter would have done under similar circumstances, not thinking how strictly worded the law relating to such killings has been made.

The testimony taken in the hearing before Justice Woodring indicates that Cole and McCartney were hunting foxes on Dec. 22 and noticed the wounded deer, which was so weak that it could not stand, but was faintly bleating and seemed to be in distress. Pity for the wounded animal and a feeling that there was no possible chance for it to recover, led the men to put it out of its misery, it is alleged. That the animal had been wounded before and that the hunters told a straight story was apparent, testimony showing that a bullet, other than the one by which Cole shot the deer, had been taken from its carcass and was considered sufficient proof that the deer really was in distress. It was also alleged that McCartney told Cole to shoot the deer and the former then cut its throat, so that both men were implicated.

[illegible] near where the deer was killed and he went to his home and told his father of the incident, telling of hearing the shot and seeing the dead deer. The father in turn notified the state police stationed in Snow Shoe and they proceeded to investigate. In the meantime, the hunters returned to Snow Shoe and left the deer in the woods, so that quite a number of persons saw it.

The hunters, asked why they had not said anything about how they happened to kill the deer, remarked they intended to report it to the state police and did so, although they were delayed several hours because the state police were out investigating the killing while the hunters were waiting for them to make their report and that they thought it was nobody's business outside of the state police.

The hunters admitted killing the deer, justifying themselves by the fact that they did not consider it humane to let the animal in distress when there was no hope of it recovering from the wound which was already taking its life. When confronted with a question as to why they did not follow the law to the letter when they could have done so within 20 minutes even if obliged, and report the deer without killing it, to walk into Snow Shoe, (for it was comparatively a short distance from Snow Shoe to where the deer was killed), so that an officer named by law could have first examined the wounded deer, one of the hunters replied: "We didn't think of that. If I had it to do over again, I wouldn't have killed it."

From what could be learned it seems that the matter of slaying the deer was reported to Harrisburg some time ago and the department was fully informed and it was suggested to them that no charge be made against the hunters.

However, Thomas Mosier, game protector, was obliged to bring prosecution. The law makes no allowance for any man's failures. And it appears the two hunters will each be fined $100 and costs, as the justice has no alternative, but to carry out the law, however inclined to temper justice with mercy and reason that he may feel about it.

One chance for the hunters to escape paying the fine remains and that is, the prosecution may withdraw the charges, so that the justice could place the costs on the offenders who apparently intended to do no wrong, but were acting on impulse in putting the deer out of its misery and who did not get the venison, which was distributed among the poor in Snow Shoe and vicinity by official instruction. It is considered not likely that the charges will be withdrawn. In the meantime, the justice has continued the case until next Friday to take more testimony.

Rash Irwin Resigns

The Centre County Board of Commissioners announced on Tuesday that Rash Irwin had resigned as their chief clerk and that Walter Armstrong had been chosen for the vacancy. Mr. Armstrong assumed his new duties on Wednesday.

WOLF ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Was One of Seven Taken When Mother was Caught.

A pet wolf attracted much attention among the passengers and others at the local Pennsy station on Monday morning. The wolf was almost full grown and was in charge of J. Herbert Walker, of the Altoona Tribune editorial staff, who has been in ill health and recuperating at a cabin in the mountain section about Coburn.

Mr. Walker is a lover of out-doors. He spends much time in the mountains and on hikes, being a live member of the Pennsylvania Alpine club. He was taking the wolf to McElhattan to the home of Col. H. W. Shoemaker and told the following interesting account of the animal:

The wolf is a pet of Miss Lillian C. Sheffer warden, patrolman, and watchman at Paddy mountain, employed by the state. Miss Sheffer is a "dead" shot and well versed in mountain life. She is one of the few women who have successfully engaged in forestry work. The wolf was presented to her by Col. Shoemaker, noted as an authority on nature and mountain life in Pennsylvania, his stories being familiar to many and always interesting.

Miss Sheffer is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sheffer, formerly of Bellefonte.

The wolf was one of seven that were acquired by Col. Shoemaker after the mother had been trapped in Wyoming. Six of them lived and are now eight and one-half months old. The other five are kept at Col. Shoemaker's place at McElhattan.

There are also a pair of wildcats, a gray fox and three coyotes, beside a number of valuable dogs, kept at the Shoemaker place. All the animals, excepting the wildcats, are said to be quite tame and can be picked up and petted by almost any person, without danger of [illegible]

The wolves are the grey timber wolves. They are all tame and much like dogs. Miss Sheffer's pet plays with a bird dog about her cabin, on a knoll in the Paddy mountain district, and never goes out of sight. At her whistle, it comes bounding to her side. While it has the look of the true timber wolf, alarming to many, it seems to be just as harmless as a big dog.

There is, among many folks, an understanding that wolves will fight if pressed but Mr. Walker said he didn't think they would fight unless cornered or in a band. "Take this one, for instance," said Walker, "One day the dog brought in some fresh meat. The wolf had never been allowed fresh meat. It took the meat from the dog. Miss Sheffer asked me to take it from the wolf. Of course, I thought the wolf would put up an awful firgh if I undertook to take fresh meat from it. However, it didn't do anything. I went to it and said, 'Give me your paw', and shook its paw. Then it rolled over on its side in play and I picked up the meat but the wolf didn't pay any attention to it."

Auto Upset, Not Damaged.

Francis Musser, genial and efficient manager of the Montgomery & Co. clothing store at State College, while motoring to Bellefonte on last Thursday evening, accompanied by Charles Hughes, business manager at the Bellefonte Academy, attempted to turn out for another car and his Ford coupe skidded and upset. The occupants were considerably frightened, but were fortunate in escaping with no injury. The car was righted and also found not damaged, not even a glass being broken. Mr. Musser resides in Bellefonte and was following his usual custom of driving to town when the mishap occurred.

Fire in Flue.

The property of John Lambert, on South Spring street, occupied by James (Pink) Knarr and family, was slightly damaged was slightly damaged by fire early on Friday morning. The blaze was caused by paper in the flue. The paper had been pushed into an opening, which was papered over when the house was occupied by Miss Olive Steele, some years ago. The house filled with smoke and this awakened the family. An alarm was given and the fire companies responded and were able to keep the loss at a minimum, the draught causing the flames to be drawn into the flue and making it an easy blaze to extinguish.

Income Tax Man Dates.

The Income Tax man will be at the places in Centre County as listed for the convenience of those who desire or need help in making out their income tax returns for the year 1922: Philipsburg, in Council chamber, Moshannon National Bank building, third floor, on Feb. 15, 16, 17; Bellefonte, in Court House, Feb. 26, 27, 28; Milesburg, postoffice, March 1; State College, postoffice, March 2.

JUDGE QUIGLEY WARNS WAY OF CROOK IS HARD

Court Will Not Tolerate Forgery And Worthless Checks.

SENDS TWO TO PRISON

Judge Henry C. Quigley, in a special session of Court on Wednesday morning declared in no uncertain teams that the Centre County Court will not tolerate tampering with finance by such crooked methods as forgery, worthless checks, or attempts in any manner to defraud honest citizens. However, before taking up such cases, the Court disposed of the matter of Edward Markley, a quarry foreman of Bellefonte, charged with malicious mischief, growing out of disorderly conduct in the Centre County Library at the Court House on last Saturday evening, in which the beautiful and costly mahogany table, familiar to to those who have visited the room, was sadly marred. Markley made a plea of guilty and was represented by Attorney John Bower.

In presenting a plea for leniency, Mr. Bower said that he understood Markley who is 40 years old and born in Tyrone, was an industrious workman and that he seemed to have no recollection of the matter.

"Can you account for your actions in this beautiful library here on last Saturday night?"

"I can account for coming into it but that is all."

"You walked up to jail alright. You didn't seem so drunk you couldn't do that," said the Judge.

"I don't remember of being put to jail," Markley replied. Judge Quigley said:

"You don't remember of being put to jail when on Saturday evening I [illegible] how you had demolished things in this room, one of the most beautiful in the state. I understand you were led to the drinking by mingling with others. But what you have done will take you a lifetime to repay. The sentence of the Court is that you pay $100 fine, costs of prosecution and serve six months in jail, the jail sentence to be paroled on the following conditions, that you promise not to touch any liquor in that period, that you make good the damage you have done inasmuch as possible. Do you think you can do that?"

"Yes, sir, I will make good."

The next prisoner to enter a plea of guilty was Peter Hitt, of Philipsburg, charged with forgery on two counts. This action grew out of discounting a note of Dec. 26, last at the Moshannon National Bank in Philipsburg for the sum of $200, said to be endorsed by names of Mrs. Hitt and her father, William Pelton. Hitt was represented by Attorney S. D. Gettig, who made a plea for leniency so that Hitt could go back to his wife and two children and stated that Hitt had promised to make good for any loss or costs. The Judge said, however, that it did not look well to ask for leniency and not have any of the other persons concerned in Hitt's welfare to be present. Furthermore, that he knew of no attempt being made by any other than Hitt, himself, to secure such leniency and this was not deemed sufficient.

"I am not going to sentence you so much to punish you," Judge Quigley said to Hitt," but to warn all that the Centre County Court will not stand for such crooked work. Stand up."

"How old are you?"

"Fifty-two."

"Where is your wife?"

"She is staying with her father. He has been after her to stay with him ever since we were married. Right after going there she had a little baby. It is four months old now and has a bad cold. He lives out in the country all alone and has 65 acres of land to look after and can't do it. That's why he didn't arrange to pay for the note. The note is not due yet and I will take care of it if given a chance. I intended to pay it when it came due, anyhow. I did not forge it. My wife told to me to put her name on it and I wrote it at her direction. I had ask my father-in-law about putting his name on it and he said alright. He was not at home when I made it and I put his name on for him."

"But you have done this before?" queried the Judge.

"No, this is the only time I ever put another's name on. I'll be honest. I have drawn checks before and always made them good."

"Then, you admit that you passed worthless checks?"

"No, sir. I always paid them."

"When did you get fired as chief of

There's good reason for your condition and likely it's weak kidneys. Winter's colds and chills throw a heavy burden on the kidneys The kidneys fall behind and poisons accumulate. It's little wonder, then, that you suffer backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and bladder irregularities.

Don't risk serious kidney disease. Use Doan's Kidney Pills before it is too late. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. G. R. Fogelsonger, 104 N. Earl St., Shippensburg, Pa., says: "A cold settled in my kidneys. When I bent over I was annoyed with pulling pains through my back. My kidneys were irregular in action and I was nervous at times. Through someone's advice I procurred Doan's Kidney Pills. I was rid of all signs of kidney complaint. My cure has been permanent and I credit no other medicine than Doan's Kidney Pills."

C. L. Miller, 214 8th Ave., Juniata, Pa., says: "I have been exposed to all kinds of weather and I contracted a cold which settled in my kidneys. My kidneys did not act right and I had sharp, cutting pains through the small of my back. When I bent over I was unable to straighten, my back was so stiff and lame. My kidneys were sluggish, too. OLD FOLKS NEED POWERFUL TONIC TO GET RESULTS

Their Weakened System Does Not Respond Readily and Stomach Easily Upsets.

HERE IS A TONIC THAT BRINGS RESULTS QUICK

Elderly people find it hard to get a tonic strong enough to affect their system or do them any good at all. Thanks to modern chemistry, however, it is now a simple matter. Read what this elderly user says:

"I was so weak and delicate and frail I had to get members of the family to help me around. I almost starved myself, because my stomach got so weak there was hardly anything I could eat without making me sick. I doctored, but they did me no good and I decided at last that perhaps it was just old age and that nothing could help me. I am past seventy and I thought it was old age, but one day I read a Hypo-Cod advertisement in the paper. I said nothing to anyone and sent for a bottle. The Hypo-Cod, strange to say, agreed with my poor, weak stomach, and from the first seemed to help me. I never dreamed a patent medicine could do such wonders, and when my doctor heard about it he was amazed, but after seeing how it was building me up and the formula on the bottle he told me to keep taking it, and I did," declared Mrs. Mary Matthews, a well known, well-to-do and beloved lady known all around Pittsburgh. "I feel ten years younger now and Hypo-Cod built me up so strong and well I go downtown, do all my own buying and attend to my business affairs. I eat as hearty as any member of the family. They told me I was too old for any tonic to do me any good, but Hypo-Cod fooled them, and I recommend Hypo-Cod in hopes other old folks hear about Hypo-Cod, as I know it has added years to my life," continued Mrs. Matthews (retired), 170 41st St., Pittsburgh.

Hypo-Cod is a pure, wholesome, powerful and modern tonic. It has a pleasant taste. Agrees with weak stomach perfectly. (See formula and full directions for home use on each bottle.) Old folks should not risk being sickly as wet, dangerous, cold and miserable pneumonia and grippe weather approaches. Drop in at the drug store tonight and take home a bottle or two of Hypo-Cod. The cost is trifling compared with results. (Show formula on bottle to your doctor—he will endorse it, if you wish.) All druggists, or write Earle Chemical Co., Wheeling, W. Va.—Advertisement.

Man's Length of Life.

According to the president of Cornell university the average length of life in North America is fifty-six years. In 1850 it was forty-one and in 1910 fifty-two and one-half years. Students of this interesting subject say that the average life could be prolonged twenty years if all people could learn and profit by what health experts know. Health education has a lot to do with it. In tropical India the average man is destined to die at twenty-four. Longest lived people in the world are the progressive New Zealanders. They are said to live sixty years on the average.

Tragic Tales of Unclaimed Cash

Banks Hold Many Millions Deposited by People Who Never Claim Money.

CONGRESS IS URGED TO ACT

Government Estimates Dormant Balances at $35,000,000—In 1917, 518,873 Persons Had Failed to Claim Accounts.

If, some day when the world seemed dark and dreary, you were notified that a bank was holding a bunch of money just waiting for you to come and ask for it, how do you think you'd feel?

New York.—What becomes of the people who make deposits in banks and never claim the money? What becomes of their relatives and connections?

Once a year the banks are required to publish the names of these depositors, and in many instances efforts are made by special investigators to find individuals. Extensive search and much work follows, but in nine cases out of ten failure is reported. The money lies in the banks waiting claimants.

Members of congressional committees at Washington to whose attention the subject was called intend bringing the matter up for action with a view to making use of this overlooked source for additional treasury funds. In a formal recommendation to congress in 1917, and each year of his term subsequently, Comptroller John Skelton Williams urged legislation "to require long dormant balances to be deposited in the United States treasury." The present comptroller, D. R. Crissinger, repeated these recommendations to congress, but so far nothing has been done.

Total Near $35,000,000.

In 1917 the exact total of these unclaimed balances was $27,237,927, of which $21,638,689 was in the city banks and belonged to 518,873 customers. The largest sums were in Eastern states, including New York, the total being $13,634,242, belonging to 273,843 customers. Government experts estimate that the total now reaches nearer the $35,000,000 mark.

Inquiries at the banks and special investigators' offices show that even in recent cases of death of depositors it is a hard job finding relatives. Take the case of Edward J. Kelleher.

He kept a shoe shining establishment in San Francisco. There came to him one day in 1917 an Italian shoe shiner who insinuated that Eddy's store kept other things as well—maybe stolen goods, maybe not. Eddy laughed and asked him where he got that stuff. The Italian didn't care for his manner, pulled out his gun and shot him.

Shoe shining must be a profitable business. Eddy Kelleher left a nice little nest egg of $30,000 all ready set for the queue of relatives. But they were slow in coming. So slow, in fact, that the public administrator after doing everything in his power to find them gave it up.

By one of his correspondents, the case was referred to Nelson H. Tunnicliff, 71 Chambers street, New York, the attorney who represents many of the city banks in dormant balance matters. Tunnicliff unearthed many interesting things about the departed Kelleher. He had served a couple of terms in San Quentin prison for robberies, under another name. He had also lived in the Bowery in New York and inspected the inside walls of the state prison for two years. His bank records gave his birthplace as Lawrence, Mass., while the prison record suggested Salem, Mass. Tunnicliff discovered the baptismal entry at Lawrence, however, along with those of three other children, brothers and sisters of the dead man.

Advertised Without Result.

He advertised extensively in Lawrence and in Salem without result. It was only after considerable work, extended further afield, that a nephew and niece were located in South Dakota. They knew their uncle well and had even offered to help him once after his imprisonment. Bread cast upon the waters, etc., Kelleher's money was distributed to them.

There died in 1920 Mary McCrea, who was born in Brooklyn in 1850. Mary McCrea has left $50,000 for some one—but who? She was the daughter of James Brickley and Bridget Chandbrickley, born in County Wexford, Ireland, came to the United States in 1840 with his sister, Elizabeth. Elizabeth was married in Brooklyn to John Walsh by whom she had a daughter, Catherine, in 1850. After Walsh died she was married to John Lawless. There were no children. Catherine married, also in Brooklyn, but the name of her husband is not known. About 1873 they went to the Pacific coast, and it is believed her husband died and that she married again.

Returned to Ireland.

Brickley is known to have returned to Ireland in 1864, where he erected headstones to his parents and relatives, but he came back to this country and died in 1870. His daughter, Mary, married Samuel McCrea, who apparently had money. Efforts by Nelson Tunnicliff to trace the rightful claimants for the legacy have so far met with no success, but it is thought that many will remember Elizabeth Buckley Lawless, who used to keep the little candy store at 106 Bocrum place, Brooklyn.

Another $28,000 goes a-begging with the death in 1918 of Harry Allen Hastings. He was born in Oneida county, New York, in 1861, and it is known that his mother's maiden name was Allen. Not much else is known. Hastings was a waiter in Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, and later served at the old Delmonico's in Beaver street. He left $28,000.

But for romance and detective work, the Bowery Savings bank case of the Cullmann account is hard to beat. In 1861 Frederick Collmann or Cullmann, a turner, of 425 Fifth street, opened an account with the bank which in 1863 was transferred to Eliza Cullmann. In the passing of years the account became dormant and search for Cullmann was fruitless until one day a William Cullmann appeared on the scene saying he had been struck by the similarity of names in the advertisements.

His father, a prosperous pipemaker, had died suddenly and the shock had rendered his mother subject to fits of insanity. She kept the family together, however, until one day after an attack in the street she was attended to and taken to an asylum. The three children, William, Charles and Franz, were sent to city institutions, cared for until proper age and indentured to various parties. Thus the family was scattered.

Names Found to Agree.

The names of the children agreed with the beneficiaries named in Cullmann's account, but unfortunately the Cullmann who had come to light could not remember the address of the family during the year previous to 1873, except that they lived in a house on the East side, opposite a graveyard. Examination of city maps revealed that one of the addresses fitted this description exactly. His mother's name, also, was Eliza. An old wallet belonging to his father, whose name was written on the flap, bore a distinct resemblance to the signature on the account opened by Cullmann. Sundry other documents, marriage certificate, etc., served to connect his mother with the account.

Cullmann was deeply moved when he learned that the amount involved was over $1,100. "If only we had known this, the family would never have been broken up," he said. He was advised how to proceed, take out letters of administration, etc., but three years later, in 1901, the bank still held the account and wrote asking him about it. He declined to have anything further to do with the case, saying that it only revived memories for him which he wished dead. But he was willing to let Mr. Liddle of the bank clear up matters.

Liddle discovered early in the case that Eliza, with the cunning of the insane, had an account with the Metropolitan Savings bank for over $2,000. The account read: "Andrew Miller or Eliza Cullmann, in trust for William, Franz, Charles, Mary." Cullmann had not previously mentioned his sister, but at mention of her name he remembered her as being on Randall's island with the brothers. After the children were indentured to different parties, Franz and William ran away, returned to New York and eventually found each other.

Mother Cured.

In the meantime the mother had been discharged as cured, and she and the two boys were reunited. But another attack of insanity sent Eliza Cullmann back to an asylum. It was therefore up to Liddle to discover Eliza, the mother, and Charles and Mary, the other two children. From police records he found that Elizabeth Coleman (an easy mistake in the name) was admitted to the asylum at Ward's island in 1874, and that she died at Hart's island in 1885.

From Randall's island he was assured that the records did not show any trace of there ever having been four such children on the island. But William Cullmann stuck to his statement, and a personal visit to Randall's proved that he was right. The record was brought to light showing that William, thirteen; Franz, eleven; Charles, nine; Mary, seven, were committed to the island June 9, 1869. The records also showed to whom they had been discharged, and this gave a starting point, although it seemed hopeless to find the other two after so many years.

Mary was discovered, married, living at Yalesville, Conn. Charles was found by means of photographs and advertising throughout the whole country.

There are lighter sides to the game. One woman found not long ago in New York told the bank officials that she had not applied for her dormant money because she had lost her bank book and thought the money went with it. Another woman did not call at her bank for 23 years, being afraid her husband would get the money and spend it. One book had been forgotten because the children had been allowed to scribble all over it. Other books have been discovered in old trunks after 30 or 40 years. There is a story, tragic or otherwise, back of every one of these unclaimed balances.

Cat Summons Policeman to Aid in Kitten's Rescue

London. A cat, helped by a policeman, succeeded in rescuing her kitten that had fallen down a well at Alton, in Hampshire.

The distressed cat attracted the attention of a policeman, and the faint cries of the drowning kitten explained the mother's agitated antics and cries.

Two efforts made to save the kitten by lowering a bucket failed.

Then the constable lowered the mother cat by a rope. Her natural aversion to water vanished in her desire to save her kitten, which was raised exhausted to the surface, firmly but gently held in its mother's teeth.

Too Reminiscent.

I overheard a remark the other evening which would form a good addition to that remarkable series of playfully satirical drawing by Du Maurier in "Punch," entitled, "Things one would rather have left unsaid." A very gushing lady and her daughter swept across a room and up to a little lady who was standing there and said: "My, how sweet you look this evening;" then turning to her daughter, remarked in a very audible tone, "My dear, she must have been lovely when she was young."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SAVES THREE PALS FROM BOILING POT

Cannibal Chief, Former Oxford Man, Declares He Couldn't Eat a College Chum.

London.—An amazing story—which may or may not be true—of how three young Oxford graduates were "plucked from the boiling" at the hands of cannibals is related in published accounts here.

Three men who were engaged in missionary work in Borneo, or Papua, were captured by the natives, who trussed them up and prepared to make a feast of them.

Three large fires were being started. Three pots were produced and knives sharpened, when suddenly there

He Was Evidently the Chief.

He was evidently the chief of the tribe. He seemed at first much pleased at the situation, says the story, but after examining the captives he called a palaver, at which it was clear he was objecting to their being cooked.

He silenced the opposition to his views by bludgeoning the dissenters, and finally secured the release of the missionaries.

The narrative proceeds:

"Then the chief said in good English, with a slight Oxford drawl:

"'I am very sorry you have been inconvenienced, gentlemen, but all is well now. These warriors will see you safely back to your missionary station. And so good-by.'

"Then he whispered aside:

"'I'm dressed so differently that probably you do not recognize me, but I recognize you well enough. You were along with me at Balliol three years ago, and of course, no Balliol man could think of eating a fellow Balliol man.'"

GIRLS FORM A SUICIDE CLUB

Five Members Fail in Attempts to Kill Selves After Leading a Gay Life.

London.—A group of former "gay and giddy" English girls have formed a suicide club, declaring that the joy of life does not pay, according to testimony given in court at London, England, when two alleged members of the club were arrested after they failed to drown themselves.

Five members of the club have made unsuccessful attempts to commit suicide, one girl told the court. The club is composed of about a dozen girls who have been conspicuous for their gay living and who now seem determined to kill themselves.

Lad Kills Father for "Good of Community"

Fred Steppe, fourteen years old, of near Lynchburg, Va., killed his father, Edward Steppe, while he slept, "for the good of sister, myself and the community," he is said to have told Sheriff Perrow when that official went to the Steppe home to arrest him.

The boy, according to the sheriff, complained that his father had been "brutal." The man was killed with a single-barrel shotgun.

SETTLED THE WHOLE MATTER

Flapper Saw Dreadful Possibility if She Followed Advice Given Her by Business Woman.

The Capable Business Woman is an "employment expert" in one of the large downtown offices. The types that come to her are many and interesting. One girl applied. She wore clothes that were technically within the law, and no more. Her face wore a heavy mask of rouge and powder, while her "frizzled" bobbed hair was adorned with a ridiculous hat.

"I'd like a position as steno, here," she announced.

"I'm afraid I have nothing for you," replied the Business Woman somewhat coldly, and then becoming conscience-stricken at her total lack of sympathy with the flapper, she added in a friendlier tone: "May I give you a bit of advice? I hope you won't misunderstand me when I say you are not appropriately dressed for an office. You should dress more discreetly, otherwise you may be misjudged. Next time you apply for a position wear a dress with real sleeves, don't curl your hair so tightly, and if you must wear rouge, put it on sparingly. You might also get a semi-tailored hat—"

"Good heaven!" interrupted the flapper, aghast. "If I dressed that way I'd look like you."—New York Sun.

MANY WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

Through the Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Two Interesting Cases

Some female troubles may through neglect reach a stage when an operation is necessary. But most of the common ailments are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same. When disturbing ailments first appear, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. Many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Mrs. Edwards Avoids Operation

Wilson, N. C.—"For about a year I was not able to do anything, not even my housework, because of the pains in my sides and the bearing-down pains. I could only lie around the house. The doctor said nothing but an operation would help me, but I tried different medicines which did no good, until my sister insisted on my trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She said there was nothing like it. I know that she was right, for I began to improve with the first bottle and it has done me more good than anything else. I am able now to do anything on the farm or in my home and I recommend it to my friends."—LILLIE EDWARDS, R. F. D. 3, Box 44, Wilson, N. C.

Another Operation Avoided

Akron, Ohio.—"I can never praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for what it has done for me. I had such pains and weakness that the doctor told me nothing but an operation would help me. But my mother had taken the Vegetable Compound and she told me what it had done for her, and so I took it and I am glad to tell every one that it made me a strong woman, and I have had two children since then."—Mrs. R. G. WESTOVER, 325 Grant Street, Akron, Ohio.

DIFFERENT KIND OF CAPTAIN

That Particular Police Official Was the Incarcerator, Not Liberator, of Suspected Persons.

The letters O. R. following the name on the slate at the city prison mean that the person named has been released from jail on his own recognizance, or without being required to give bond. Naturally, the first thought of an attorney representing a prisoner is to obtain the release of his client on his O. R.

Several days ago a lawyer walked into the office of Edward Shubert, captain of police, at headquarters and made an eloquent plea for the release on his own recognizance of a craps shooter. His plea fell on deaf ears.

"Say, look here, you've got the wrong captain," Shubert said. "There's the let 'em pass out captain over there. I'm the put 'em in captain." The lawyer left the office, shaking his head.—Indianapolis News.

"I Don't Sink So."

A little New York girl, eight years old, accompanied her mother to a studio exhibit where many rather languid ladies and gentlemen were viewing a poorly painted and rather questionable picture, about which they were making polite but insincere remarks. Into the middle of the studio to a place in front of the special canvas little Laura strode; after a moment's look at the picture she turned around and in a high-pitched voice cried out:

"Zat's a very bootiful sing, but I don't sink so!"—Youth's Companion.

LIVED UP TO HIS GROUCH

New Yorker Surely Went the Limit Between Saturday Afternoon and Monday Morning.

Wijjit had a grouch when he left the office Saturday afternoon. He refused an invitation to join a friend who said he knew a place where the modern substitute for the wild thyme blows and started for his lonesome home.

The grouch was still in evidence when he returned Monday morning.

"I got home Saturday," he said, "sat around a while, took a nap and decided I did not want to go out to dinner, so I drank a part of a bottle of stale milk and went to bed. I have spoken just two words since I went away Saturday. They are the name of a brand of cigar, and I used them in buying a smoke."

"Didn't you speak to the waiter where you get your meals?" asked a friend.

"Not a word," said the owner of the grouch. "I ate in a nickle-in-the-slot place."—New York Sun.

FARM MEETINGS

Schedule as Being Held Each Week.

During the past two weeks the first two of a series of farm meetings which are being held in five different communities throughout Centre County, met with very good success. The attendance has been good generally and the discussions which follow the talk very beneficial to those attending. During the first week E. J. Walters discussed corn and legume crops. Last week E. M. Christen discussed hogs. During this week Prof. E. B. Fitts will talk on the dairy problems of Centre County. Most every farmer in Centre County has a few dairy cows and should be interested in this meeting. Mr. Fitts has just recently come to Pennsylvania from the state of Oregon where he made an enviable reputation in dairy production. The places of meeting as announced at the beginning of the series are:

Monday, Stormstown, at the Grange Hall, at 8 P. M.

HEAVY SNOW DRIFTED

Roads Effectively Closed for First Time This Winter.

The heavy snow, accompanied by wind, on Monday night and early Tuesday morning, made the worst drifts encountered in Centre County's roads this winter. Many cars were stalled in the snow which was heavy and blown into drifts as it fell. It was too heavy for cars to make their way through and yet not heavy enough to bear their weight, making a combination that effectually closed the roads in some districts.

Our well-known townsmen, Hon. A. G. Morris, who was formerly a familiar passenger at the Bellefonte Pennsy station, taking the train to Tyrone almost daily on business, but who had discovered how much more convenient to use his auto and was missing about the station for two months, on Wednesday morning took the train once more.

Reason? His car was stuck in a drift for the first time this winter and, even with the assistance of a crew of a dozen men who were working on the state highway nearby when his car was stalled in the drift, it required just about one hour to shovel away the snow and free the captive auto. During the two other months that the car was used, Mr. Morris says he didn't have much trouble with the snow, although there were a number of snowfalls when much more of the beautiful white covered the earth. This section has been fortunate, considering the amount of snow that came, inasmuch as there was little wind and not much trouble from drifting.

Complaint About Coal.

A report states that the Pennsylvania authorities have been asked to investigate shipments of coal into New York state of coal from certain Pennsylvania mines, found to contain slate, rocks and cinder. The complaints said that in some instances the foreign matter was as much as 75%. Coal sold in Bellefonte this year contained at times much slate, some stone and a little cinder, but even this came to the dealers in such small quantities that folks hereabouts were glad to get as much as possible and often could get only a half ton or maybe less. The operators are censured for taking such advantages.

BEGIN PROSECUTIONS

Dog Owners Who Have Failed to Get Tags Face Fines.

Vigorous prosecution of dog owners who have failed to secure their 1923 license tags has already been started by the agents of the bureau of animal industry of the Pennsylvania department of agriculture. Last year, the first the dog law of 1921 was in effect, the department of agriculture delayed prosecution of tardy owners until sufficient time had been given everyone to become familiar with the law.

The field agents of the bureau of animal industry last week received instructions from Director T. E. Munce to begin prosecutions at once, and already dog owners have been summoned to appear before magistrates.

Under the law, the owners of a dog six months of age or over, must secure a license on or before January 15 of each year. Lists of dog owners in every county have been furnished the bureau of animal industry by the local assessors and these lists are now being checked up with the lists of licenses issued in the offices of the various county treasurers. Where it is found that no licenses have been taken out by owners assessed with dogs, prosecutions will be entered.

In addition, the bureau will continue its work of gathering up unlicensed dogs found in the more thickly populated sections of the state and in all cases where owners of such dogs can be identified prosecutions will result. Dog owners who have failed to comply with the law will do well to secure their licenses at once, as the minimum fine for the violation of the dog laws has been generally fixed at $5, in addition to which the recalcitrant dog owner must pay the costs of prosecution and secure a license as well.

OVER THE COUNTY

Harry Barker, who had been employed in Altoona for some time, recently came to the home of this wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Treaster, with whom Mrs. Barker and her child have been staying. Mr. Barker became ill and a physician was summoned who diagnosed his ailment as diphtheria. The home has been quarantined as a result.

The Schreckengast hunters, east of Centre Hall, added two more foxes—one red and one grey—to their list the early part of the month. They also discovered where another sly fox had killed a Ringneck pheasant and eaten the choice flesh from the breast, letting the remainder lay.

Samuel Stump, of Centre Hall, was so painfully wounded in the palm of his left hand, one day recently while working at the repairs to the Odd Fellows hall in that town, that he was obliged to stop work for some time. A large splinter from a hemlock plank penetrated his hand.

Ice formations are presumably the cause of the sounding of the burglar alarm on the Penn's Valley Bank building in Centre Hall on a recent morning. The alarm began to sound forth its stirring call between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning and the cashier succeeded in breaking the contact only after repeated efforts.

That the fire in Centre Hall, which caused considerable damage at the Odd Fellows hall and the C. M. Smith store, is still under investigation, is apparent from a recent visit by a state policeman who quizzed a number of persons about the blaze and jotted down some of the statements which may later be used in reaching a solution as to what caused the fire.

IN JAIL IN LOCK HAVEN

Entire Family from Clarence Kept in Prison.

Charged with violations of the Volstead act by making moonshine liquor, Michael Pasquerello, his wife and six children, were placed in the Clinton County jail in Lock Haven. It is said the alleged moonshiner was a former resident of Clarence, with his family, and was employed in mining coal, but about four months ago they moved to Coleman's siding, in Clinton County, and near to Karthaus, where he and other miners secured work in a timber tract operation after being evicted from the mines at Clarence.

It is charged that he further devoted his time to making and selling moonshine liquor until caught by state police and taken into custody. It seems only Pasquerello was arrested, but that he had no means of providing for his family, so had them all come to jail with him.

It has brought a complicated matter of settlement before the Clinton County authorities who have been endeavoring to arrange for the financing of the prisoner and his family's needs. On account of being a resident of Clinton County for only four months, a question was raised as to whether the poor district of Clarence was not obliged to provide for the miner's family inasmuch as it was deemed no residence had been established in Clinton County. The Clarence overseers of the poor are not inclined, however, to provide for families who are in trouble in Clinton County.

In the meantime, Pasquerello and his family hold forth in jail and must be provided for. They have not been taken to the city home for the reason that the institution is well filled with 17 inmates and the law does not permit the maintenance of children in city homes along with the aged, sick or partially helpless.

FARMERS GET MORE AUTOES

Statistics Indicate Horses Are Becoming More Scarce.

Sixty-five per cent. of the farmers in Pennsylvania drive automobiles either for business or pleasure. This rapid growth of the automobiles in the farming sections of the state is indicated in figures prepared by the Bureau of Statistics of the Pennsylvania department of agriculture.

The horse on the farm is not being relegated to the limbo of the forgotten, however, for on the first of the present year there were 475,625 horses faithfully plodding away on the farms of the state. This number is a decrease of 2% over the horses reported one year ago.

In addition to the automobiles on the farm the reports of the Bureau of Statistics indicate that there were 21,791 automobile trucks in use on the farms, an increase of more than 4,000 during 1922.

Commissioners to Confer.

County Commissioners in Centre, Clinton and Lycoming counties, met this Thursday in Beech Creek to consider matters pertaining to several bridges. Among the bridges considered was the inter county bridge over Beech Creek and a new bridge to be constructed over Pine creek.

SENDS TWO TO PRISON

police in Clearfield?"

"I didn't exactly get fired. I was asked to resign. That was on June 7."

"What did you do since then?"

"For four months I was night policeman at a coal mine in Cambria County and got $7 a night."

"Were you at this work, making over $200 a month, when you passed the note?" queried the Judge.

No satisfactory answer was made and the Judge said, "Your sentence is to pay a fine of $1, costs of prosecution and serve not less than one year nor more than two years in the Western penitentiary."

Tom Wolford was another prisoner to enter a plea of guilty to obtaining money on worthless checks. He was represented by Attorney J. K. Johnston, who made a strong plea for leniency, not condoning the acts of the boy, but urging consideration of his parents, spoken of in high terms as good, worthy citizens, pleading that they be caused as little anxiety as possible by the wrong their boy had done, and saved from the stigma which a penitentiary sentence brings.

Judge Quigley listened patiently, sympathy showing on his face but overruled by a firmness for the right that must not be overlooked. He cast a withering look toward Wolford and said,

"Stand up."

"How old are you?"

"Twenty-eight," was the quiet reply.

"How much money has your father made good on these checks for you?"

"About $75."

"How much do they amount to?"

"About $1,200."

"Why did you come back from Canada?"

"I wanted to make things right, to do the right thing."

"Didn't know the state police were getting ready to go after you?"

"No, sir."

"You say you lost this money gambling?"

"Yes, sir."

"When did you start gambling?"

"Last summer."

"Must have struck a pretty stiff game."

"Yes, sir."

"And on the side you broke up a happy home!"

"I didn't know as I did."

"Well, I know."

Mingled in with the case were remarks that carried a very evident promise to go straight and to make good for the money fraudulenty secured.

"You would have your father mortgage his home to pay off your indebtedness? And how would he come out?," was a question put forth by the Judge.

"I intend to pay it all back if given a chance."

"You are an electrician and make good money, don't you," said the Judge.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Well, you have certainly been leading a bad life, haven't you?" remarked the Judge. "You are sentenced to pay a fine of $1, costs of prosecution, and serve not less than two years nor more than three years in the Western penitentiary."

Wolford seemingly thought he would escape a prison term and appeared dazed by the severity of the sentence.

He Left Us Well Provided For

ALL the long weeks he suffered after the accident his hospital expenses were paid and I got $50 a week, every four weeks, in addition because he had that ÆTNA DISABILITY POLICY.

He'd had this policy a number of years. It cost so little we never missed the amount. When he left us, it was costing no more than when he first took it out, and all those years the insurance was increasing rapidly.

Baby and I have several thousand dollars now because of my husband's forethought. I shudder to think of what a frightful struggle life would be had he put it off until too late. The world looks none too kindly upon widowhood.

Miss Susan Ohnmacht Dead.

Miss Susan Ohnmacht, very widely known in Centre County as a dealer in pianos and organs, as well as an accomplished musician, passed away about 10 o'clock on Friday morning at the home on West Logan street maintained by herself and her faithful friend, Miss S. J. Morgan, who did much during the declining years of Miss Ohnmacht to lessen her pain and suffering, making her as comfortable as possible. While there were no near relatives surviving, the severing of the cord of friendship is felt as keenly by Miss Morgan as if she and Miss Ohnmacht had been sisters. The deceased when about twenty years old, came to this country from Germany, where she was born. Her age is not exactly known, Miss Ohnmacht having been very sensitive regarding this and not telling it to even her closest friends, but it was near the four-score mark. She was a member of the first orchestra in Bellefonte, others being Wm. H. Derstine, F. Potts Green, Evan M. Blanchard, and three Bierly brothers, and Dr. A. Hibler, all having passed from this life as far as we have been able to learn. Later she was pianist in other orchestras. She was also, for many years, the organist at the St. John's Lutheran church. She was forced to relinquish all her playing some years ago on account of failing health. As an instructor of the organ and piano, her services were very much in demand. Spending the best years of her life in Bellefonte and Centre County, possessed with a most desirable personality and winning disposition, she counted her friends by hundreds. Though ill for years, she was about the streets even early this winter until snow made it impossible for her to leave the home. She was not considered seriously ill until last Wednesday evening when she suffered a stroke which quickly sapped her strength. Funeral services were held on Monday and burial made in Union cemetery.

Dr. T. C. Twitmyer Dead.

Ferry on Lake Michigan Trapped by Ice

Not in Alaska, nor even in the most remote regions of Canada, but just over the border line between the United States and the Dominion was the scene pictured here. Great ice floes in Lake Michigan caught a ferry, plying between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace, in its grip and held it fast. Dynamite was employed to blast clear a passage for the ship across the lake. Passengers were able to walk across the ice to their destination, and rescue crews also walked over the frozen lake.

WHERE MONEY IS CHEAP

On Maxwell street, Chicago, one can procure bales and wads of Russian rubles for the American dollar. The money was brought here by immigrants who speculated in the hope that the ruble would rise, and it has been tossed on the market for less than wall paper would bring. Strangely, there are thousands who are purchasing these rubles in the hope they will again rise. Polish marks and Austrian kronen are also for sale at appropriate reductions.

Synthetic Sugar.

Synthetic sugar is not yet a marketable commodity or commercial proposition, but professors who conducted the research work at Liverpool university which led to its discovery say it has opened a fascinating field for research. It might some day be possible through the sun's rays, to turn formaldehyde into sugar in a form which would make it of commercial value. So far the experimenters have succeeded in producing glucose in a sirup form. The difficulty is that the rays of light which produce sugar from the formaldehyde decompose it almost as quickly as they produce it. If, therefore, it were possible to shut off the rays which actually produce the sugar immediately their function has been performed, synthetic sugar might begin to wear the aspect of a commercial proposition. That is the task which awaits investigation.

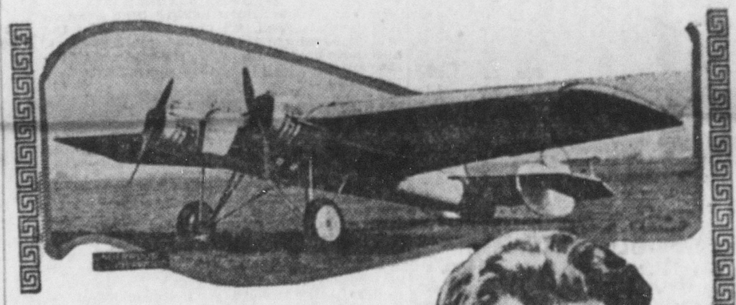
Stout and His All-Metal Plane



The first all-metal airplane, invented and flown in this country, recently made a series of secret flights before navy officials and prominent men in Detroit. Built entirely of "duralumin"—a new copper aluminum alloy—the plane successfully carried a load of about two ton at a speed of 113 miles an hour. While for military reasons the details of the ship cannot be disclosed, it is known that it is of the internally trussed monoplane type. William B. Stout of Detroit is the inventor. A company has been formed for the construction of commercial planes on the same lines. The illustration shows the plane and Mr. Stout.

TO ORGANIZE ALL CHAPLAINS

Father O'Connor of Cincinnati Assumes Task to Increase Membership of the American Legion.

Father William P. O'Connor of Cincinnati, national chaplain of the American Legion, refuses to admit that the duties of his office are confined to the delivering of an invocation at the Legion national convention. In accordance with this belief, Father O'Connor has assumed the task of organizing all war chaplains in an effort to gain new members for the Legion.

Father O'Connor.

William P. O'Connor is a fighting type, and his thirty-three years are full of interesting experience. Born in Dayton, O., he attended the public and parochial schools and was graduated from St. Mary's college, now the University of Dayton, in 1908. He was graduated from St. Mary's seminary and ordained in 1913, when he accepted an appointment as pastor of a church in Urbana, O.

He was serving there in July, 1917, when he became chaplain of an Ohio National Guard organization which later became the One Hundred and Thirty-sixth Field artillery of the Thirty-seventh division. He sailed with this organization for France in June, 1918. The ship, before completing the voyage, rammed a German submarine which later was sunk by destroyers.

Father O'Connor served with his organization in the Baccarat sector and later at St. Mihiel, the Meuse-Argonne and in Belgium. After the armistice he proved his versatility by arranging for the production of "The Passing Show of the A. E. F.," one of the best soldier shows presented overseas.

The national chaplain obtained first-hand information in regard to the feelings of newly discharged veterans when he served for a time with national headquarters of the American Red Cross. Later he became pastor of a church at Jamestown, O., and subsequently was transferred to his present charge, the church of St. Vincent de Paul in Cincinnati.

He served as a member of the Legion's national ceremonials committee in 1921, which drew up the ceremonials which have been used by all Legion posts. In all clashes of religious creeds and dogmas, Father O'Connor has been noted for his marked liberality and toleration.

ROUNDS UP LEGION MEMBERS

W. A. Stevens, Commander of Des Moines (Ia.) Post, Promises to Have Largest Organization.

Any man who can go out and get 200 members to anything, even the American Legion, is worthy of attention. W. A. Stevens, newly elected commander of the Legion post of Des Moines, Ia., has the credit for getting one-tenth of the 2,000 members of his organization, the second largest post in the country.

W. A. Stevens.

During the war Stevens was a sergeant in the One Hundred and Ninth Ammunition train of the Thirty-fourth division. He spent 11 months at Camp Cody, N. M., and later went overseas. He has pledged himself to make his post the largest in the country and to lead it in participation in civic affairs.

Praises the Legion.

Phil D. Swing, a member of the house of representatives from California, has issued a statement praising the American Legion for its work in conducting American Education week. "As water will rise no higher than its source, so our republic will prove no wiser than the electorate from which it draws its authority and inspiration," Congressman Swing stated. "Hence, the all importance of seeing that every person admitted to participation in our government receives the necessary education to be able to understand the problems which confront our nation and to contribute his bit toward their intelligent solution. This applies with equal force to the native-born as well as to the naturalized citizen. The American Legion is doing a splendid peace-time service by boosting American Education week."

AH SING CHING WINS FIRST

Fourteen-Year-Old Boy of Hawaii Takes Prize in Legion's National Essay Contest.

Ah Sing Ching, of Ewa Oahu, Hawaii, a fourteen-year-old boy of Chinese extraction, won first place in the American Legion's national essay contest on the subject, "How Can the American Legion Best Serve the Nation?" Contest results were announced recently by Garland W. Powell, who is the director of the Legion's national Americanism commission.

Ah Sing Ching.

Second prize in the contest, which was open to all school children between the ages of twelve and eighteen, was awarded to Miss Pauline Virginia Chastain of Indianapolis. Joseph Giandonato of Bridgeport, Conn., won third prize. Honorable mention was made of the essays of Phillip E. Mosely of Westfield, Mass., and Ralph R. Sullivan of Twin Harbors, Minn.

The board of judges of the Legion contest was composed of John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education; Chancellor E. E. Brown of New York City university, and S. S. McClure, the publisher. National prizes are first, $750; second, $500, and the third, $250, the money to be used as scholarships in any university or college. They were awarded by Hanford MacNider, of Mason City, Ia., who was national commander of the Legion last year.

"The fact that a boy of Chinese descent in Hawaii won the essay contest testifies to the splendid work of Americanism which Legion posts in Hawaii are emphasizing," Mr. Powell stated. "The Hawaii department is to be congratulated on the development of a national winner in a contest in which more than 50,000 school children participated."

The text of Ah Sing Ching's winning essay follows.

"The American Legion, which is composed of men and women who engaged during the war stands for unity, democracy, peace and service to God and our country.

"The slogan of our country is, 'In union there is strength,' and it is because of this unity, our country is so strong, but during the World war, we found that we had internal as well as external enemies. Bolshevism, communism and anarchy are as real enemies as any we had to fight overseas, and much harder to conquer.

"The American Legion can do a wonderful service to the country by encouraging a spirit of unity and cooperation, and by teaching foreigners who come into the United States how to live under a republican form of government, and by helping them to understand that ours is a government of the people, by the people, for the people and it shall not perish from the earth. Many foreigners come from countries where they have been oppressed and they do not understand the word liberty, but think it is license to commit crimes. These people must be taught and the American Legion can aid in doing this.

"We learned at the beginning of the World war that many of our own citizens were uneducated, and that not nearly enough money was being spent for schools. Here is a great work for the American Legion, to see that every child in the United States has a chance to be educated. What we want in our nation we must put in our schools, so the need for schools and well-trained teachers is very great. Night schools for the training of men and women who work during the day help to educate our citizens and those who wish to become citizens. The American Legion is on the side of education, and we believe will make every effort to see that the schools of the United States rank first in the world and that every citizen has the opportunity for learning.

"During the World war many of our soldiers were wounded and returned home, suffering from shell-shock, sick and unable to care for themselves. They fought in a great cause and deserve well of their country and their comrades. The Legion can give these returned veterans aid and comfort, and after they have sufficiently recovered help them to become self-supporting. Many of them will be unable to follow the same occupation that they did before the war, but some kind of work can be found for them to do. The Legion should see that their comrades are always cared for.

"The United States is not a military nation and believes in war for defense and not for conquest. At the close of the war, our country asked for no land and no indemnity. Not many months ago President Harding called a conference of the nations to discuss a reduction of armies and armament. The American Legion can aid by fostering and encouraging peace and good will among nations and by standing for a fair deal between large and small nations, allowing the small nations to decide for themselves how they shall be governed."

Disabled Man Gets Members.

Although he is a disabled man taking treatment at a St. Paul hospital, Hans Hundorf has signed up 67 new members for St. Paul Post No. 8 of the American Legion. The post now has 400 members.

HAIR STAYS COMBED, GLOSSY

"Hair Groom" Keeps Hair Combed—Well-Groomed.

Millions Use It—Fine for Hair!—Not Sticky, Greasy or Smelly.

A few cents buys a jar of "Hair-Groom" at any drug store. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to your hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions.

Greaseless, stainless "Hair-Groom" does not show on the hair because it is absorbed by the scalp, therefore your hair remains so soft and pliable and so natural that no one can possibly tell you used it.

The Cruel Retort.

They were seated on a little rustic bench. The moon shone through the trees. All at once the girl timidly said: "Jack, dear, I can't understand why you lavish all your affections on me above all other girls in the world. Why is it?"

"Hanged if I know," he replied, "and all the other fellows down at the house say that they can't make it out, either."—Denison Flamingo.

PILLS ON A PULLMAN

WHO put the "sleep" in Sleeping Car?

Nobody!

It was a PILL.

A pill made it possible to sleep restfully in a Pullman, and leave the train next morning with clear head, bright eyes—full of enthusiasm for breakfast and "pep" for the new day.

Here's how: Just before you peel down the sheets, take two Beecham's Pills. This is the pleasant, sure way to attune the organs of digestion and elimination to normalcy, and thus assure a night of tranquil repose.

CAPERS OF CUPID

By AGNES C. BRENNAN

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The wide veranda that skirted the dance hall at Clarendon Cliffs was practically deserted. Everyone was bent on enjoying the last dance of the season, and the gay laughter and carefree chatter that punctuated the soft strains of the orchestra gave evidence to the fact that many of the summer colonists would carry away very pleasant memories of one night at least.

Seated in a dark corner of the veranda were Marion Harvey and Walter Morrison, seemingly oblivious of the gayety within. Walter was speaking very earnestly and with a trace of haste.

"I am very sorry, Marion, that this had to happen, but, you see, there is no other course open to me to follow. When I asked you to marry me, I was a poor man, and in my moderate circumstances you would have made me an ideal wife. But now that my uncle has written that he wishes me to come to New York as his assistant, why, everything has changed, and I must consider my future. It is quite possible that when he dies I shall succeed him."

Walter paused, and, as Marion said nothing, continued: "While you are indeed well fitted to hold your own in the society of Clarendon Cliffs, you would be hopelessly lost in New York. So, I am afraid that our plans for the future were a trifle—er—too premature."

As Walter finished, Marion drew off her engagement ring and held it out to him. Taking the ring, he said: "I've been thinking how unpleasant it may be for you to explain matters to your friends, so I won't mind if you care to say that you broke the engagement yourself. It will not cause me any annoyance, because I leave for the city in a few days—as soon as I can explain things to the new manager at the garage. And that reminds me, I promised to introduce him to some of the people at the dance tonight, as he is a stranger, so if you have no objections, let's go back to the hall."

Marion roused herself as if shaking off a chill.

"There he is, by the second window." As Marion looked, she saw a young man who seemed very much at loss. He was scanning the hall for someone who might possess the key to the evening's pleasure. "You don't mind if I introduce you, then you can present him to some of your girl friends."

Taking her silence for assent, Walter piloted Marion toward the stranger.

Ed Condon acknowledged the introduction with a look of relief, and turning to Morrison said: "I was afraid you had forgotten me, but," smiling at Marion, "my wait has been more than compensated by the pleasure of meeting Miss Harvey."

After a few minutes' conversation, Walter said: "I must go back to town, Marion, but I'll return to take you home."

As he turned away, Marion replied. "Better spend the evening planning your future, Mr. Morrison."

At the door he looked back to see them chatting cordially, and continued out into the darkness.

After Ed Condon took charge of the garage he became a frequent visitor at the little cottage where Marion lived with her aunt. During the long fall and winter months, when the town seemed closed within itself, Marion and Ed spent much time together, and when summer smiled on this little seashore resort they were inseparable.

The second summer since Morrison passed out of Marion's life was drawing to a close, and the glorious days when the sun kissed sparkles from the blue Atlantic, coupled with soft nights of mellow moonlight beside the whispering waves, wove a spell about Marion and Ed, so that it was inevitable that he should ask her to be his wife.

At the last dance of the season, Marion looked radiant, and Ed's heart skipped a beat or two as he thought of the possibility of her answer being unfavorable. One dance for formality, and then he led her to the veranda. Before giving her answer she told him of Morrison and asked if he, too, might be overlooking her future.

"Marion," he replied, "I want you more than ever, rich or poor, now and for all time; so won't you please say 'Yes?'"

* * * * * * *

"A Mrs. Edward Condon to see you, sir," announced the office boy. Morrison hesitated. Then, "Very well, show her in."

As the door opened Morrison immediately recognized his caller.

"Why, Marion! It is indeed a surprise to see you—"

Marion cut him short. "I believe you have met my husband, Mr. Condon."

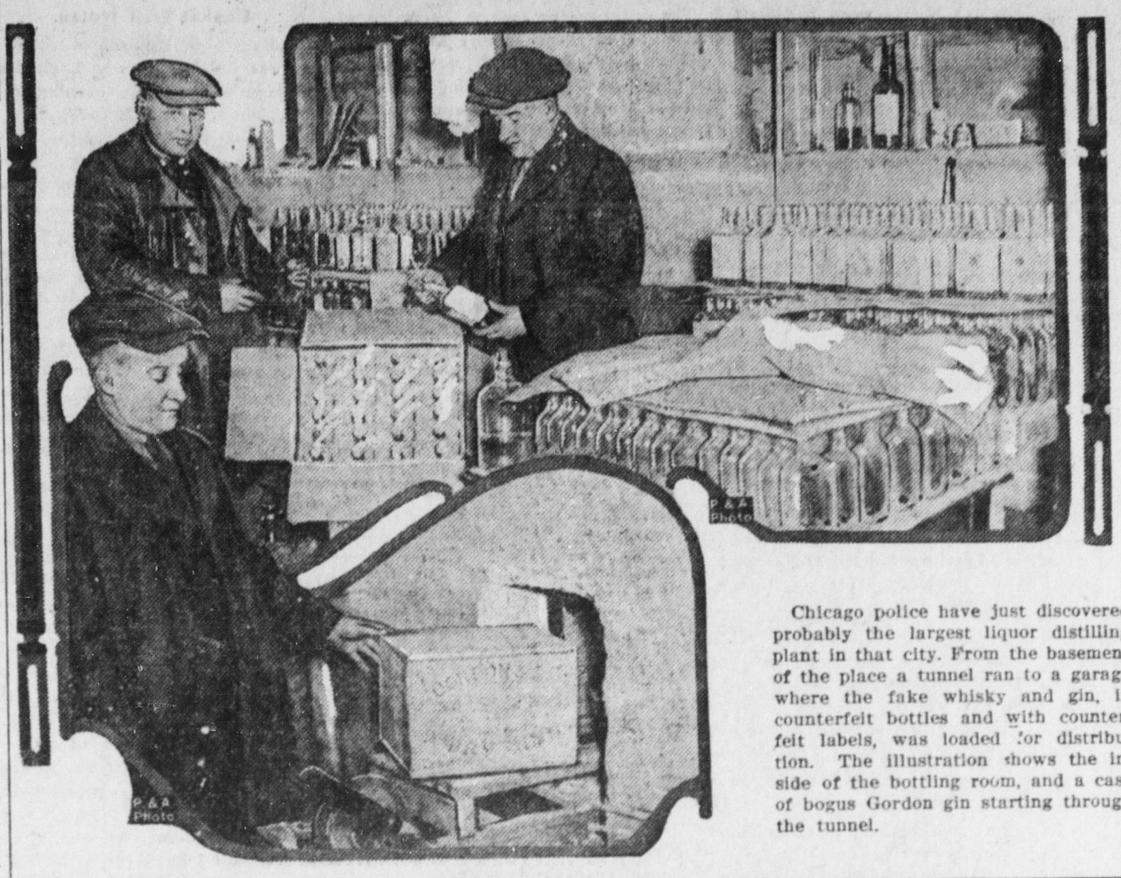
Effusively, Walter offered them chairs.

Marion continued. "You are quite busy, so we will stay but a minute."

"Oh, I am never too busy to welcome old friends," answered Morrison. "My uncle retired because of poor health, so I am administering the estates that the late Mr. Gregory left in trust for his daughter, and I'm endeavoring to manage them so efficiently that she'll retain me when she assumes control. So you have come to New York to spend your honeymoon?"

"No, we are on our way to Canada for a month's trip, and I called to see you about a small matter of business, I am Mr. Gregory's stepdaughter, and when we return I want you to be ready to turn over my affairs to my husband."

Chicago's Biggest Bogus Liquor Plant Found



Chicago police have just discovered probably the largest liquor distilling plant in that city. From the basement of the place a tunnel ran to a garage where the fake whisky and gin, in counterfeit bottles and with counterfeit labels, was loaded for distribution. The illustration shows the inside of the bottling room, and a case of bogus Gordon gin starting through the tunnel.

DECLARES TANLAC "IS BEST OF ALL"

St. Paul Woman Says Stomach Trouble Is Gone and She Has Gained 10 Pounds.

"Tanlac has meant health and happiness to me, and I think it has no equal," declared Mrs. Albert Kaping, highly-respected resident of 29 E. 10th St., St. Paul, Minn.

"I was so terribly run down my housework seemed like a mountain to me, and lots of times I had to give up and rest. I was nervous, weak, and had splitting headaches and awful dizzy spells. My stomach was so badly out of order almost everything I ate would sour and I suffered terribly from gas, heartburn and a distressing smothering feeling. I could not sleep nights, my back ached terribly, I lost weight till my clothes didn't fit, and was in a generally wretched condition.

"But now I get real joy out of caring for my house. Since taking Tanlac I have gained ten pounds, never have indigestion and all my aches and pains are gone. I take pleasure in recommending Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

FREEDOM FROM LAXATIVES

Discovery by Scientists Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Medical authorities have found that the gentle lubricating action of Nujol most closely resembles that of Nature's own lubricant. As Nujol is not a laxative it cannot gripe. It is in no sense a medicine. And like pure water it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is prescribed by physicians; used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

Basket Ball Notes.

The Bellefonte High school basket ball team was defeated by the Lock Haven High team on Saturday evening in the "Y". The score was 38 to 29.

Last week the Academy played four games with results as follows: Wednesday—Pitt Freshmen at Pittsburgh, score 33—30 in Pitt's favor (this was a classy game, the score being tie at the end of the game and necessitating five minutes play to break, when the Pitt five scored three); Thursday evening—at Morgantown, W. Va., played W. Va., Freshmen, defeated them by 17—12; Friday evening—Fairmount, W. Va., played State Normal, latter's favor. 25—20, in a hard game; Saturday evening, played semi-professional team, at Fairmount played a machine plant five and lost 40—34. In the last game the Academy held the semi-professional stars to a tie score, but lost out in the second half in spite of splendid plays. Mr. Hughes, headmaster, says: "It was a successful trip as basket ball goes because our team was playing with so-called superior teams on their floors."

This week the Academy plays Pitt Freshman again, in Bellefonte, at the armory on Friday evening at 8:30. This promises to be one of the best games here this season as the Academy surely expects to get revenge for their defeat at Pittsburgh. On Saturday night, the Academy plays Westmont High school of Johnstown, in the armory at 8 o'clock. These will be two interesting games. Fans, don't miss them. The Academy has won eight out of twelve games. There are still eight more games on the Academy schedule. At least half of these games will be played here and not one but what promises lots of sport and good, clean, thrilling contests.
